NEWTOWN COUNCIL GIVES CONTRACT, STREET REPAIRS

Newtown Company to Supply
Three Hundred Tons of Stone

A GREAT IMPROVEMENT

Owners of Some Vacant Lots Notified to have Such Mowed

NEWTOWN, Aug. 10.—Borough Council has awarded a contract for street repairs. The Newtown Ice and Trading Company will furnish about 300 tons of stone for $2.19 a ton. The Kopper's Products Company will apply hot tar to the selected streets for 12 cents a gallon under the supervision of William McCahan.

The streets to be given surface treatment are Lincoln avenue from State to Penn. Centre avenue, Lincoln to Elm, Elm avenue, Maple and Green streets, Penn street, east from Lincoln avenue; Norwood avenue, Sterling street; Court street, Congress street, Mercer street, State street, north of Jefferson, and Barclay street. The east side of Chancellor street from the Barnsley residence, north to the borough line will also be top dressed.

Councilman Watson reported on prices for stop signs Council decided last month to erect at dangerous corners. Mr. Watson was instructed to purchase and erect ten stop signs and two school zone signs. The signs will be erected at the corners where Chancellor and Lincoln cross the east and west streets.

Attention was called to the fact that there is no fire plug on North Congress street and Council authorized the installation of a plug near the school property.

Newtown Title and Trust Company asked Council for permission to change the grade of the driveway to the oil station in the rear of the banking house.

Mr. Fabian stated that the Vacuum Oil Company needed more room for the conduct of their business and a new building will be erected if the lot can be leveled. To do this it is necessary to drop the driveway at one end and raise it at the other. Council will inspect the property and grant the request if it does not interfere with proper drainage of the street.

Borough Engineer W. Aubrey Merrick was instructed to furnish the owners of the Triumph Building on State street with the grade line for the purpose of laying a new concrete pavement.

Owners of vacant lots about the town who have neglected to mow the same will be notified to clean up their properties.

Pool Adds to Beauty of A Lawn in Andalusia

ANDALUSIA, Aug. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brackin have recently improved their lawn by beautifying it with a fish pond.

The pool is quite large, and built of concrete. The walls and base have been painted blue. Around the side of the pool white diamond rocks have been placed. Between the rocks are various colored flowers blooming. The water lilies, pink and yellow, and the water hyacinths are most attractive.

There are various kinds of fish in the pond, some of a bronze color, some silvery and some flecked with black. There are also two tiny water turtles, as well as several tadpoles. Friends of the Brackins gave them rare specimens of goldfish. Some of the fish have been named for the donors.

On one side of the pond there has been placed an orange and black bench which is shaded by a huge orange and black beach umbrella, placed at a jaunty angle. Around the pond are several wooden birds that look almost real, seeming to bend their heads to the ground in search of food.

Condition of Girl Who Drank Ammonia Improved

Condition of Miss Elizabeth Clardy, who drank a portion of an ounce-bottle of household ammonia in front of the home of her fiancée, John Hibbs, Pine Grove street, Monday afternoon, is improved.

The young woman, 24 years of age, was taken to the private hospital of Dr. J. Fred Wagner, after she had painfully burned her throat by drinking the liquid. It was stated at that institution today that Miss Clardy is doing very well.

Miss Clardy had gone to Stockton last week to vacation with friends, and returned home Sunday night. It is thought that a misunderstanding had occurred between the two as when the young woman drank the ammonia Monday and fell to the sidewalk, she is said to have remarked upon regaining consciousness, "John is all I have to live for."

The achievements of Women especially in these very prolific years since 1842 will dominate the celebration. Woman as Pioneer, Woman in Medicine, in Law, Science, Invention, Art, Music, Literature, Social Service, Aviation; Woman as Explorer, Woman in the Home—Woman in perhaps forty or more fields of human endeavor will be the theme of tableaux, editorials, lectures, demonstrations, competitions and radio programs.

Edgely Wins Over Morrisville, 2 to 1

On Monday evening, the Edgely A. C. nine, of the Bristol Twilight League defeated Morrisville A. C. 2-1 in a pitchers' battle on the Edgely diamond.

"Jake" Tranotti and "Bill" Hughes were the opposing hurlers. Tranotti set the Morrisville team down with a lone bingle, made by Hill, the second-sacker. Hughes allowed the winners only three hits, two of which went to J. Dick, the left fielder. Felkner, the initial sack guard made the other blow, a double. He also was hit twice with pitched balls, having a perfect average for the night.

Miss Wagner in Middle Bucks
Made Total of 209
Visits

COVERED 1767 MILES

During the month of July, Miss Maud L. Wagner, Red Cross rural school nurse, who covers the middle Bucks county district, made 209 visits and covered 1767 miles.

Her activities included four antepartum visits, health supervision, one infant, 59 pre-school, 105 school, seven adults, fifteen visits and interviews in behalf of the nursing service, seventeen visits and interviews in behalf of general activities.

During the month, two parents discussion groups were held, with an attendance of 13. These classes were very interesting. The groups suggested their subjects and an effort was made to explain the importance of the feeding and care of the younger children. Posters and charts with printed information, were loaned by Miss Rhendana Armstrong, the home extension worker in Bucks county. The mothers were very apt in grasping the information given them and were very much interested in the posters, as well as in asking questions.

At each group meeting, salads, soups and other eatables were served. Many recipes were copied by the group. Two meetings have been planned for August. The nurse will be on her vacation and Mrs. Herman Burger will have charge of the classes.

During the month, the nurse accompanied 13 children to eye clinic; 1 to cardiac; 1 to dental; 1 to chest; 2 to X-ray; 1 to prenatal; 1 to nose and throat and 1 to mental clinic and accompanied an adult to the County Home for medical care.

"GLORIFY PRODUCTS FOR AN APPETITE APPEAL"

Phila. Retail Fruit Merchant
Thus Advises 2000 Fruit
Growers

AT THE FARM SCHOOL

FARM SCHOOL, Aug. 10.—"I believe we are in the best business in the world, but you must glorify your products to the state of appetite appeal," declared Samuel Cooke, owner of Philadelphia's largest retail fruit and vegetable stores, in an address yesterday before 2000 fruit growers of southeastern Pennsylvania who met at National Farm School on the occasion of their annual field day.

The speaker, who started five years ago with what he said was "the correct time," now operates a chain of fruit stores, the latest of which was patronized by 40,000 persons on the first two opening days.

Mr. Cooke, looked upon as a wizard in the retail fruit and produce business, declared that he took exception to a previous speaker who stated that there is an over-production of produce.

"This country is positively not over-produced," he declared, "but it is under-producing good fruits and vegetables."

"Make the people of America fruit- and vegetable conscious! Then you will see an increase in your sales and there will be plenty of markets. Let the people of America know that they should balance their diet with fruits and vegetables. The trouble is the people of the country are not co-operating enough in the fruit and vegetable consumption when compared to other products nationally advertised that have very little food value."

"I am a great believer in advertising. Grade your goods properly, raise more good fruits and vegetables. Let me tell you right here that in my opinion the big retail fruit and vegetable organizations of the larger cities will never put the little fellow out of business."

Mr. Cooke, when asked what he thought of the roadside stand competition which a previous speaker representing the wholesale distribution end had described as unfair competition for the town stores, declared, "Fine, roadside markets and stands are O. K., they are a good thing," he said. "Don't you realize that the more people that buy fruits and vegetables of a good quality, the greater will be the demand for this merchandise in all of our retail stores."

"It is the same old story—glorify your products to the stage of appetite appeal."

"Wholesale marketing" was the subject of an address by E. S. Woodward, of Philadelphia, one of that city's most prominent wholesalers. He represented the National League of Commission Merchants. He declared that the principle of marketing fruits and vegetables is not any different in Pennsylvania than in any other section, but the application of the principle somewhat at variance due to the many conditions existing.

"There is too little attention given to the grading of miscellaneous fruits and vegetables," he declared. "The average grower considers that which he raises is the best and should command the top of the market, many times basing his judgment on his products regardless of color, size and quality."

"It seems to have been the practice of many growers to market everything they grow simply because it had been produced. This practice is an old one and should be discarded and much more progressive ideas and practices adopted."

"Every grower who grows poor fruits and vegetables and markets them, regardless of the economic laws that govern, pulls down the value of good fruits and vegetables. Just as soon as growers as a class realize this fact and then when the average grower exerts an effort in increasing his own as well as his neighbor's quantity of quality thereby lowering his quantity of off-grade products, will he have made a progressive step and his influence will be felt throughout the entire state."

Mr. Woodward, differing from Mr. Cooke's opinion, stated that he believed that we are affected at the present time with over-production and under-consumption, and the present economic condition.

CIRCUS COMING TO BRISTOL, AUGUST 17TH

Barnett Brothers Will Again
Exhibit Here Wednesday of Next Week

IS A VERY GOOD SHOW

A real honest-to-goodness circus is coming to Bristol and will exhibit here on Wednesday, August 17th. It is to be the Barnett Brothers Circus which showed to satisfaction here last year.

"No doubt you are aware that a real honest-to-goodness circus is the greatest entertainment of all amusements, and the only branch of the amusement world that does not need censoring. A visit to the circus is a day of enjoyment for the old and young. It is a day that the kiddies always remember, and the older folks never forget. Barnett Bros. is twice its former size this season and is now offering an unusual programme of sensation and merit, with more real novelties than all the other shows combined."

"A grand spectacle, 'Nationality,' precedes the regular performance this season, over one hundred men, women and animals take part. Miss B. Peasey is the prima donna and is assisted by a large group of pretty girls. Barnett Bros. has spared no money to make this the most gorgeous spectacle ever produced. This is presented with the regular circus performance without extra charges, and is the talk of every town visited."

"The street parade this season is over one mile in length, and will pass over the principal streets. Beautiful tableaux, trucks, four bands of music, steam calliope, funny clowns, pretty girls, prancing steeds, performers and animals from the far corners of the earth. Believe no false reports, Barnett Bros. Circus will positively exhibit; there can be no change in route or change of date, and, above all, this show will not be split," says the managers.

Midsummer Hop at St. Mark's To Be "Different"

Modern dances, and waltzes of several years ago will make it possible for all to indulge in the pastime.

Ralph Waters, who broadcasts from Station WIP at 8.00 every Wednesday, will play a violin solo. There will also be a 20-minute floor show with talent from Philadelphia and Bristol.

Floater advertising the dance will be dropped this evening over the town from Capt. Lowell Smith's aeroplane.

The committee in charge consists of: Miss Gertrude Murphy, refreshments; Miss Eleanor Keating, advertising; Miss Elizabeth McGinley, publicity and tickets; Miss Margaret Fox, patroness; Miss Frances Blanche, decorations.

The proceeds will go for benefit of St. Mark's Church and a pleasant evening is promised all who attend.

Mrs. Clifford Anderson, Radcliffe street, is visiting in Ocean City, N. J.

SELF-SACRIFICE OF (FLYING FISH

Cruising in West Indies, yachtsman writes that near Jamaica three flying-fish flew in through an open port-hole and landed on the captain's table just as he sat down to dinner. They were caught and tried in time to follow the soup.—No one doubts that Jamaica fish are more jingery than ours, or more accommodating. Still, the story sounds a bit rummy—as of course it would, considering the source.—Less startling, but true, are the classified ads in The Courier.

Pinchot Before Senate Lashes Public Utilities

Harrisburg, Aug. 10.—Governor Gifford Pinchot today sternly demanded of the State Senate that it prosecute an exhaustive investigation into the public utilities corporations throughout the state some of which he flatly charged with bribing members of the Public Service Commission.

Once more in fighting trim on familiar stamping ground, the Governor appeared personally before the upper chamber and announced his determination to "destroy this evil system which has reached into every man's home and lowered its standard of living by extortionate overcharges."

He warned the Senate that the people of the press and of the Commonwealth demanded an investigation of the relationship between the utilities and the Commission. He urged the legislators to delve into the mass of charges filed against W. D. B. Alney, invalid chairman who resigned under fire. At the same time he congratulated the Senate on its prompt action of accepting the resignations of Alney and Emerson Collins, Williamsport, unable to serve on the Commission because of his physical condition. He concluded with the request that the Senate confirm his two appointees to the Commission, George W. Woodruff, former attorney general, and Fred P. Gruenberg.

"My purpose, the purpose of every citizen loyal to Pennsylvania and its people, is not merely to rid the Public Service Commission of unworthy members; it is not merely to replace them with men capable of protecting public interest and honestly devoted to that purpose. My purpose first and foremost is to destroy this evil system which has reached into every man's home and lowered its standard of living by extortionate overcharges and which has cost our people in the 17 years since the Public Service Commission has been established, many hundreds of millions of dollars."

Governor Pinchot read to the Senate, excerpts from editorials of 27 newspapers, which in almost one voice, demanded a Senate investigation of the bribery charges filed against Alney and other forms of corruption involved in the Commission.

ARREST MAN ATTIRED IN WOMAN'S CLOTHING

First Arrest in Dispute Between Garment Workers
and Truck Operators

AGAINST RACKETEERS

PERKASIE, Aug. 10.—One arrest has been made in the dispute between garment workers and truck operators. Yesterday a man dressed in woman's attire was arrested within 50 feet of the main office of the Branch Storage Company. The arrest was made by Chief Schatz, after nearby residents, fearing a strikers' outbreak informed police of the "woman's" actions.

Questioned by Schatz the man gave his name as Harry K. Ambers, 38, of Lansdale. He convinced the police that he was not a striker, coming to Perkassie to interview officials of a cigar company concerning a position advertising their cigars on the sidewalks.

He said the woman's attire he planned to use to convince the company that it was a novel dress for advertising purposes. Ambers was given a hearing before Magistrate Keller and released after paying a $5 fine for driving a car without an operator's license.

Word of the arrest added to the tense situation in the borough for a time. Officials say there are no labor troubles in the local plants which are not unionized.

Armed to the teeth, Perkassie and Sellersville are ready to battle racketeers and clothing strikers who may invade the North Penn Valley in an attempt to close clothing factories and halt the transfer of cloth and the finished product between New York City and this community.

A riot squad of thirteen men went on duty today under the direction of Chief of Police James Schatz, while in Sellersville six men were deputized by Chief Frank Hallman.

The added protection for the clothing plants in the two boroughs was decided upon at hastily called meetings of Town Councils. Hurried calls were sent to Philadelphia for tear gas supplies.

Precautions were taken following outbreaks among garment workers in New York and the resultant damage to trucks of the Branch Storage Company, transferring clothing, which were attacked in the metropolis and several drivers injured.

The company's main office here is under guard following threats received.

DRIVER OF AUTOMOBILE WHICH DEALT FATAL INJURIES TO DONATO SCIARRA, BEING HELD HERE UNDER $2,000 BAIL

George Heaton Awaiting Action of Coroner's Jury, Did Not Know Lad of 17 Had Died, As Youth Told Him
He Was Unhurt

Following the death last evening of Donato Sciarra, 17, of 17 Lincoln avenue, who was injured when struck by an automobile as he was riding his bicycle yesterday afternoon, a search was instituted by Chief of Police Linford J. Jones for the operator of the automobile. The search resulted in the arrest today noon of George Heaton, 20, of 423 Washington street.

Heaton is being held in $2,000 bail to await the action of the coroner's jury. When questioned by Chief Jones, Heaton said that he was not aware of the death of the Sciarra lad, the latter having informed Heaton who halted after the crash that he was unhurt. The Sciarra boy rode his wheel home.

Police today are endeavoring to learn the identity of the driver of the car which late yesterday afternoon struck Donato Sciarra, 17, of 17 Lincoln avenue, knocking him from his bicycle, and so severely injuring him that he died late last evening in a Trenton hospital.

Chief Jones believes he has a clue which will eventually result in the arrest of the motorist. There is also a possibility of the motorist being unaware of the fatal result of the accident, and when he learns of the youth's death he may surrender himself to the police.

Sciarra was riding his wheel along Radcliffe street shortly after five o'clock yesterday afternoon when, in the vicinity of Washington street, he was knocked from his wheel. Sciarra was able to ride his bicycle home, and informed his parents of the accident, and then lapsed into unconsciousness. A physician was summoned, and at 9.40 ordered the boy's removal to a hospital. The lad was rushed to St. Francis Hospital in Trenton, N. J., where preparations were hastily made for a quick operation, but cerebral hemorrhage occurred, and the boy died at 10.20.

LOCALITES TO BENEFIT BY "BARGAIN" TICKETS

P. R. R. Makes Four Splendid
Money-Saving Offers
Effective 15th

PHILA. AND BRISTOL

Four new types of "bargain" tickets are to be placed on sale by the Pennsylvania Railroad commencing Monday for benefit of folks travelling between Bristol to Philadelphia.

The new idea to be put into effect to save money for the public, includes sale of: three-day round trip ticket; 12-trip weekly ticket; 20-trip monthly ticket; and 50-trip six months' ticket.

This not only includes those travelling between this borough and the city of Philadelphia, but will be for use between any two stations on this local suburban line, according to an announcement by the railroad.

The three-day ticket includes a reduction of one-third under regular fare. These are on sale daily, and are good for returning within three days. These will be of great profit for week-end journeys. Charge for such between Bristol and Philadelphia is now but $1.15 return.

The 12-trip ticket for individual use within the calendar week is good from Monday to Sunday only. This ranges at about 28 cents per trip.

On the 20-trip ticket the individual may travel during the course of 30 days.

The 50-trip individual ticket is good for six months time.

Railroad fares have been decreasing during the past several months, with special rates for excursions, and week-end jaunts to points of interest, but these four offers will prove an even greater benefit to localites.

BETTER BUSINESS

A year or more ago, the Department of Commerce, after several wrong guesses, discontinued issuing bulletins reporting improved business conditions and heralding prosperity, which was always just around the corner but never succeeded in negotiating it. After a long silence the department has just gone back into the forecasting business with this change of policy; it now has something to back up its claims.

There is no more of that irresponsible optimism. The department reports an upward turn in business, cites its reasons for thinking so, and makes no pretense at telling the country's economic fortune. It doesn't know, for the reason that nobody knows, when the depression will end. But it can see that a change for the better has occurred.

Improved bond prices, higher commodity prices, suspension of foreign gold withdrawals and a halt in stock market liquidations are the symptoms of convalescence as the Department diagnoses the case.

Things did look black in June; blacker, perhaps, than at any other time since Black October. Industrial payrolls were off another 7.8 per cent; exports declined; 296 commodity prices dropped. But things looked brighter in July and they are looking brighter every day.

This mid-summer improvement set the economists to thinking and researching with the result that previous periods of deflation were found to have passed through the crisis and made a turn for the better in summer months. This one is proving no exception.

THE STOCK MARKET

The stock market still rules men's minds in business matters with an influence for good or bad out of proportion to its real importance in the world of trade.

The stock market has done more in two weeks to lift the morale of the people from the depths of despair than all other forces combined have accomplished in three years. Whatever its course in the near future, the market has demonstrated that it can rise substantially day by day for a period of weeks, and what the stock market can do, business can do tenfold.

In fact, business is doing it. From North and South, East and West come reports of business trends that are on the upgrade. A factory reopens, another increases its force, bank failures decline. Business is getting better.

There may be temporary recessions. But better things are ahead. Uncle Sam has started on the road back to prosperity.

Fame: The thing that supports a press clipping bureau.

England has had no bank failures in seven years, but America will continue celebrating Independence Day.

There is only one more test for that new hammer which drives rivets through solid steel. Can it put studs in a dress shirt?

Governor Roosevelt has promised to restore the country to its "own people" but the Indians don't seem to want it in its present condition.

Dr. Hugh Baldwin reports death due to heart failure. The only clue to the murderer is a medical laboratory specimen box outside Lola's window. Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt attaches importance to a young man named Basil whose photograph is found in Lola's room. It is known that Lola quarreled with Guy Everett and Vincent Rowland, a lawyer, over investments. Eunice, the maid, confessed she was employed by Everett to report the goings on in the apartment. The mystery deepens with the finding of the body of Christine Quires, Lola's guest. Christine had been killed before Lola and her body hidden until an opportune moment arrived for the murderer to place it, soaking wet, in Lola's room. The findings are similar to those in Lola's case except that Christine's neck was bruised after death. Everett, Christine's last escort, claims he left her at the apartment elevator at midnight New Year's Eve, and then went for a ride on the Motor Parkway, alone, arriving home after 3 a. m. Mrs. Carewe informs Colt that Christine lived with a brother, Edgar, in Rochester, and was to receive her inheritance shortly. Lola's room is vacuum cleaned and the dust particles sent to Professor Luckner for analysis. Colt sends to the medical examiner a hypodermic syringe taken from Baldwin's bag and a strap for analysis, also a strand of Christine's hair found near Lola's window. The Commissioner orders Basil's picture telephoned to M. Dupont, head of the Paris Police. It is learned that Edgar Quires received a telegram New Year's Eve and left for New York. Paper and ink identical with the death threat materials are found under Eunice's mattress. Everett's Motor Parkway alibi is shattered. Colt requests the Prefect of the Parisian Surete to investigate Lola's past. Rowland discloses that Everett wanted to marry Lola and was jealous of Dr. Baldwin. Colt believes revenge the motive for the murders.

CHAPTER TWENTY-FOUR

"I WAS very glad," remarked Dougherty, "that you got that hypodermic syringe from Doctor Baldwin. I would not be surprised if he were an active part of the scheme."

"But how do you connect Baldwin with the case at all—under your jewel-theft theory?"

"He was her doctor. Doctors often find out the most secret of family affairs. She may have him in her power. Don't forget what Eunice James told us."

"And is that as far as you go?" he asked mildly.

"Oh, there are lots of details still to be cleared—we haven't got a case at the moment—but we can get it by digging!"

"There is so much that is left unexplained," Colt pointed out.

"Such as?"

"Oh, major mysteries and minor mysteries—and it will take a smarter cop than I, at this stage of the game, to tell which is major and which is minor."

"Nevertheless?"

"Mrs. Carewe says she is an Englishwoman. Yet she speaks with an almost undetectable foreign accent. Why should she lie about her origin?"

"But that isn't necessarily important, Thatcher!"

"Real clues often do not seem to be necessarily important when you find them. Like that picture of Basil on Lola's bureau. You can call it guess-work if you like, but I know that I have seen those earnest, eager features somewhere before. I cannot get that unknown boy's face out of my mind. The picture may not necessarily be important—but I believe it is. The mention of his name threw old Mrs. Carewe into a fit. Yet she said she did not know his last name. And Lola had been kissing the portrait—the scarlet mark of her lip-stick was on the glass."

"You consider these major failures?" asked Dougherty lugubriously.

"Time will tell. Certainly the question of Christine Quires' movements between twelve-fifteen o'clock, when she left the elevator and four o'clock, when we discovered her lying stiff, wet and dead is a major mystery. We searched those rooms thoroughly—we still do not know where she could have been concealed, although I have a theory about that. How did she get into the apartment without being seen by the three people in the place? And how did her killer get in—if none of the three persons present in the apartment is guilty?"

"Those questions, I agree, are for the moment unanswerable," rumbled Dougherty.

"Yet there are others that pique my curiosity even more," continued the Commissioner. "Why is it, for example, that the two rooms of mother and daughter offer such a crazy contrast to the rest of this apartment—and to each other?"

"Does it matter?"

"I don't know. But the contrasts remains—a peasant simplicity in the mother's room, a garish old-fashioned mid-Victorian fussiness in the daughter's—and the rest of the rooms in chaste modern simplicity. There is something behind that, Dougherty."

"Sounds metaphysical to me!"

"And without metaphysics I have seldom seen any mystery solved. There is the curious three-months' visit of this heiress at Lola's home. Why? Lola had never had any other friend visit her for so long. Your jewel theory may be right—but Christine had no jewels to amount to anything. She was heiress to a million. Did Lola intend to advise her about investments, as she did Guy Everett? Mrs. Carewe hinted at something of the kind. There is a lead that promises something. But if it does lead us anywhere, then we shall have to ask ourselves a harder question—why should Lola or anyone else want Christine to die before she received her inheritance?"

"The girl knew too much about the jewel racket," insisted Dougherty thoughtfully. "I'll bet you find that her brother inherits the money after her."

"But Lola has never met the brother. You see, there is some essential factor that keeps evading us all the time—when we find that missing segment, the rest of the pieces probably will fall into place. Why was Guy Everett so nervous when we questioned him? Did he really go on a solitary auto ride last night? What method was used to kill these two women? Dougherty, old man, I could go on indefinitely reciting the riddles that still have to be answered in this perplexing case!"

"And when you get all through you'll come back to my jewel-ring idea," predicted Dougherty, gratefully accepting a second glass from the Jamaican butler.

"Perhaps," conceded Colt, "but in the meanwhile, you would not have us overlook the other possibilities within the ambit of this inquiry."

"No. But I can't keep whiffing from one opinion to another. You mean—"

"I mean that, granting at the moment we do not know how Lola Carewe and Christine Quires were slain, there are a number of people who might have killed them. We begin with Guy Everett. He had a motive of one kind or another; it seems trivial, but if he had a grudge against Lola and Christine, he might have slain them—sordid, if you like—but sheer malice has served as the motive of many murders in our records. Then there was the elevator boy. Not a very dignified or likely suspect—and yet, so far as we know, he was the last person to see Christine Quires while she was conscious. Eunice James seems to have had no motive at all—yet she might have. But Mrs. Carewe was annoyed by Christine's presence in the apartment—in senile madness, she might have killed her daughter and guest. Chung had his reasons. Never forget the fury of the Cyclops—the malicious vengeance of the ugly man who considers himself a superior being, who loves and is turned down. Perhaps, indeed, so did Vincent Rowland have a motive. Or Doctor Baldwin, unapt to do such a deed, yet with opportunities, as you very wisely suggest. Again, the brother would have a million-dollar reason for wishing to get rid of his sister—and God knows he would not be the first brother to kill his sister with tricky deceitfulness and for the same reason. I could go on, widening the list, but for our purposes the ones I have named are sufficient."

"I believe there was more than one murderer. There were at least two. Whatever happened, it was too complicated for just one person to get away with it," declared Dougherty fervently.

"Bravo, Dougherty," cried Thatcher Colt. "Your reasoning sounds accurate. But what if the poor girls were the accomplices in their own execution?"

"I hadn't thought of that," confessed Dougherty. "Sounds metaphysical again. How could they be?"

"I don't know—but there are several theories that occur to me."

"The very look of the corpse," declared Dougherty, "suggested poison to me. Have you formed any notion as to what kind of poison might have been used?"

"Not in the least. But Multooler has promised the earliest possible word. In any case, I still feel we are dealing with a highly superior criminal intelligence. Even as far as we have gone, we can see that the plan was outrageously well worked out."

Colt lit his pipe.

"If the poison," he resumed, "had reached the girl on the tip of an arrow blown from a blow-gun, a sabre-charge, or something of that sort, our job would have been much simpler. But Multooler says there is not an open wound on her body. Our guilty one has already evinced a truly infernal cunning, thinking to commit the perfect crime, no doubt. Of course we three in this room know there is no such thing. There is always a flaw in these perfectly planned atrocities. There is a flaw somewhere in this pent-house business tonight—only we haven't found it yet."

The telephone bell rang. From my extension, I heard the brittle voice of the Assistant Medical Examiner greeting Thatcher Colt:

"Hello, Mr. Colt! Say, this case gets funnier every time you turn around. I don't care how mysterious it sounds, it begins to look like those two girls died natural deaths. At least, I can't find any poison in them."

I heard the sharp intake of Colt's breath. It was a body blow to his plans. What hope was there of tracing a murder, if the police were unable to prove the girls had died unnaturally?

"How thorough was your examination?" asked the Commissioner.

"I had six assistants working with me—we went through everything, including the viscera."

"You found no symptoms at all?" demanded Colt, amazed.

"Well, I found a very queer condition in both cadavers, but I don't know what it means. There was a congestion of the muscles around the two hearts, you see—sufficient to cause death. But the valves of the hearts showed every indication that they had been functioning properly all their lives."

"Just one minute," interrupted Colt. "Are you certain of that last statement?"

"Of course, Mr. Colt!"

PATERSON PAPER NINE MOVES INTO 3RD PLACE

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE
Schedule For Tonight
A. O. H. at HULMEVILLE
Results of Last Night
BRISTOL A. A., 0; I. O. O. F., 0
P. P. P. CO., 3; CROYDON, 1

(By T. M. Juno)
The Paterson Parchment Paper Co. nine moved into third place in the Lower Bucks County League last night by triumphing over the Croydon A. C., 3-1. While they were scoring their victory, the Odd Fellows, who were sharing third place with them played a scoreless tie with Bristol A. A.

"Dick" Minkema hurled a fine game in the Tullytown win and gave a fine exhibition of steady pitching. The hits made from his delivery were well scattered and he had an easy time in besting his rivals. He was aided by good support by his mates.

On Sullivan's field, a large crowd watched one of the finest hurling exhibitions seen here in quite some time. Gene Lawler and Turner Ashby were the participants. Both pitched shut-out ball and both allowed only two hits.

The clubs passed up scoring chances in the second and third innings. In the second the Odd Fellows filled the bases with one out but lacked the punch to score. In the third, Fields reached first on an error, stole second, and went to third on another error, but he was left stranded as the third out was made.

Tonight on the Hulmeville grounds, the battle for first place will take place between the Hibernians and Hulmeville. The teams are tied for first place. Sullivan and Kycab will be the Bristol nine's battery with Black or Kohler, hurling for Hulmeville and Aflerbach catching.

On Friday night the Odd Fellows will journey to Hulmeville and play the Hulmeville All-Stars.

(Sullivan's Field)
Last Night's Results
THIRD WARD, 3; A. O. H., 2
EDGELY, 4; INDEPENDENTS, 3
(By T. M. Juno)

The Hibernians and Independents were eliminated from the second half race of the Bristol Twilight League last night when they were handed defeats by the Third Ward and Edgely teams, respectively.

The Warders with "Ney" McGinley pitching superb ball kept in the league running by scoring a run in the second, fourth, and fifth innings, making a total of three while the "Hibs" could score only twice, although they threatened several more times, but poor base-running and heads-up ball playing by the Pikers caused their defeat.

Four Hibernian base-runners died resting on third base while a total of seven were left on the total number of bases. The Third Ward nine had five runners left on base and three of these remained at the hot corner sack.

"Niggie" Brescia drove in the winning run for the downtowners with a single in the fifth inning. His hit scored Crowthers who had singled and stole second.

"Francie" Dougherty hurled for the losers and allowed six hits, three of which went for extra bases. He fanned seven and passed but one.

The Edgely-Independents game was a pitchers' duel with Edgely finishing on the long end of a 4-3 score. DiTanna started for the "Indies" and was relieved by Antonelli in the fifth after the first half champions had shoved the winning run across the plate.

"Pete" Firce was the winning pitcher and after the first did not permit a run. In the third the "Indies" loaded the sacks with no one out, but Firce bore down and retired the side scoreless.

A victory for St. Ann's tonight in their game with Third Ward means the ending of the second half of the Twilight League.

"Glorify Products For An Appetite Appeal"

ic conditions prevailing warrant attention, study and best thought of all departments of agriculture, county boards and every grower.

"If production is to continue unrestricted with no thought of the present influence as to the future, then I cannot but believe that low prices will prevail," he said. "There is today hardly a period of scarcity of any commodity of fruits and vegetables and every grower should know that in the end if he does not market his off-grade products he will be materially benefited."

Mr. Woodward also stated that another factor to contend with is the present system of government financing.

"We now have our Federal government as competitors in the fruit and vegetable industry. We have sufficient competition as it is without this competition. Just recently the national co-operative council asked Congress to put an end to the stabilization activities of the Federal Farm Board. It now appeals to Congress for repeal of the stabilization clause of the Agricultural marketing act. The situation of production and then providing funds to increase production is most unique!"

Truck peddlers came in for a good portion of comment by Mr. Woodward. "The present system of selling to truck peddlers all off-grade commodities that marketing associations will not handle possibly means the grower makes 15 cents on off-grade products, many times losing $1.00 on his quality shipments, due entirely to his culls and off-grade products competing," he declared.

"The great menace of selling this off-grade to peddlers is that it is sold on the same market in competition with other association shipped fruit or by shippers themselves. What interest has the peddler in your business?"

"Many cities are, through ordinance, reducing to some extent the activities of the peddler. However, there can be no improvement as long as the grower or shipper continues to deal with and encourage peddling. If you would but consider the nation's business, what industry would work so decidedly against its own interests as the fruit and vegetable industry is doing today?"

Cletus L. Goodling, dean of Farm School, gave the address of welcome to the visiting fruit growers. Today over 3000 potato growers from southeastern Pennsylvania are, expected at the school for a field day. The addresses are amplified through a modern system installed for the occasion on the grounds, and nearby is a monster agricultural machinery demonstration.

"The psychological effect of the new spirit of optimism is more valuable than the paper profits that have been recorded," declared Dean Goodling in his address of welcome that was filled with optimism.

"The world is still dependent upon agriculture and it is only natural that America's basic industry should show the way back," Dean Goodling said. "At the same time, it is an odd state of things that the underprivileged and handicapped farmer — the man who has waited for relief so long that he has almost forgotten what he has been waiting for, will do a job in which big business leaders have failed."

"The farmer has just grounds for being 'sore' at the city folks who were pampered and petted in the 'fat years' and did not cry 'ouch' so long as it was only the farmer who felt the depression. But it looks as if it will be the farmer who will fight the greatest battle of the ages. In doing so the agriculturist will once more prove that he still is the backbone of the nation."

Dean Goodling declared that with almost twice as many farm hands as needed, wages are the lowest in 30 years. Wage rates per day, without board, range from 55 cents in South Carolina to $2.50 in Massachusetts. With board they range from 61 cents per day in south central states to $1.51 in the north Atlantic states. The demand for farm labor is 62 per cent normal, he declared.

An inspection of the Farm School orchards and machinery exhibits took place yesterday morning. Samuel L.

Paxson presided at the general meeting, which was followed by a machinery demonstration, an inspection, peach thinning demonstration and demonstration of spray methods by R. S. Kirby and L. B. Smith.

Women in attendance, several hundreds of them from southeastern Pennsylvania, held a separate meeting when they were addressed by Miss Margaret Brown, of Penn State College, on "Making the Most of Your Complexion and Figure." There was also a demonstration by the Warrington 4-H Club on the "use of fruit."

Today Miss Brown will address the women on "Planning the Wardrobe."

One Smoker tells Another

IT is perfectly natural for smokers to talk to each other about what they smoke and why they smoke a certain brand. Tastes differ, and therefore different people smoke different kinds of cigarettes. Those who smoke CHESTERFIELDS seem to take more pride in telling other smokers — "that CHESTERFIELDS are milder; that there is no harshness — no bitterness." They also tell them — "that CHESTERFIELDS taste better; that they have a pleasing aroma." . . . CHESTERFIELDS are clicking with millions.

As Carr Won Crown at Olympics

There is now no doubt as to who is the best quarter-mile runner in the world. Bill Carr of the University of Pennsylvania decisively won the crown by beating Ben Eastman of Stanford and a crack field in the 400 meter race at the Olympic Games. Here are Carr and Eastman racing for the tape with the balance of the field yards behind. The U. of P. star set a new world record of 46.2 seconds.
